Uneven Hems In Vogue

(By Rita Stuyvesant)

Notable this season is the uneven hem of frocks and gowns. Suits finely tailored have come under the influence of the broken hem line, and this idea is carried out in street clothes and evening gowns.

Frocks of black cotton crepe are adorned with a straight hem-line. Sometimes the foundation of the dress is made with a plain tulle skirt, and then hung with pointed panels on the sides and hem that fall below the skirt. These panels are usually lined to give them added weight, sometimes with gray or gray colors, and others prefer to remain all black.

Full-hill panels are frequently used to break the even line of the hem, and occasionally used at one side of the frock. This idea was portrayed in a charming frock of navy crepe, for the plain, gathered skirt was finished at the right side by two panels of the crepe pointed and pointed, and allowed to fall considerably below the skirt.

Other crepe creations show numerous panels of fish-tail design, and of different lengths hung over the skirt of the material. When the wearer is in motion, the effect is very pleasing, and simple to attain. Frocks of heavy material, such as tulle or tricotine, or duvetyne, are likewise paneled. A broad sash of Roman striped ribbon or perhaps gold brocade is tied about the hips, and allowed to hang on the left side below the skirt. This is another way to lend this effect, especially if the sash is heavily fringed at the ends.

A tunic that begins at the hips and forms a pointed apron in the front, falling below the hem line, breaks the straight line of the bottom and lends not a little charm to an otherwise plain frock. A simple evening gown of peach tulle skirt fashionably narrow and edged with squares of smoke gray, tulle, suspended from the corners and several inches below the hem, is tulle. Eight of these squares are used. Slim ribbons have the grace to form the smart uneven hem effect, and many of them are hung from the waistband and cut different lengths. Material for evening wear lends itself becomingly to this mode, for it may be draped up on one side almost to the knee and allowed to droop on the other. Panels looped under at the hem harem style are again in vogue.

A BIT OF DISCUSSION

I call her the Wise One, because she has such a sane outlook on things. She and her husband and I and mine have formed ourselves into a little discussion group—or quartette, for we are quite convinced that more than four in such a group would be a mistake. "And there'd be so much less time for each of us to 'spout,'" agreed Mr. Wise One, when I voiced this.

And, by the way, I have just discovered, in Leckard's Life of Scott, that that master used the word "spout," which I had put down to modern slang, in his journal. But, as to our discussion, a book always supplies the point of departure, and the dullest departures are wide and varied. What constitutes drudgery was one of the things that concerned us the last time we met.

"Nothing should be drudgery that is your own job," declared Mr. Wise One. "If it isn't suited to you, you can find your interest in mastering it, and moving on to the next. But, if you're in your appointed place in the Great Plan the thing to do is to make that place as big and fine as you can. There can be no lack of interest if you do that."

"It's amazing too," one added, "what a sense of loyalty to one's own job will do towards making it interesting. There's the Wise One, for instance. Before she was married I have heard her, over and over again, rail at the drudgery of household tasks. She could never, never, she declared, be interested in housekeeping and cooking." And now she's scurrying about at pickling season, to make sure her shelves are full and that she has the newest and best recipes. She never tires of trying out new little sauces and garnishes and I know she adores getting ready for company."

"That's my job and I love it," smiled the Wise One, adding meditatively, though, "But I wonder how it would be if one's job were feeding some little fragment of paper into a machine, hour in and hour out, year after year. It would be pretty hard to believe that that was one's part in the Great Plan."

Mr. Wise One looked rather non-committal and nobody ventured a solution. "Your job in your household tasks," Tom commented, "may be due to the magic of proprietorship, rather than to any job."

"There's something in that," the Wise One admitted, "but isn't it part of the same thing? I've been loyal to other jobs that had a pretty hard side to them. But they too, were 'my job.' You can place the emphasis on the 'my' if you like. It's all the same thing."

The reference to the girl feeding the machine led back to the modern mode of speculation as compared with the days when by one pair of hands, and under one roof scores of different tasks were carried on. Tolstoy's doctrine of every one doing his or her own work was remarked upon, and the profound impression it made upon Jane Addams, who after she had seen him and had returned to Hull House, is said to have left all her other tasks, at certain times, to take her own little loaf of bread for her own consumption. She kept this up for several weeks. It seemed to her that, as things are, and yet, with all questions of production and distribution as complicated as they are now, one sometimes sighs for the return of methods as simple as they were when the home was the chief centre of industry and wonders if, beginning as new from such a basis, one could build up a more satisfactory system than the one under which we sigh to-day.

THE GENIUS

Man, thou fool, dost thou not know thyself—

The talents God has given thee, thou hast hid.

Thy candle hath a bushel burns with stealth.

Unlock thy treasure chest—throw back the lid.

The equanimity in man oft is disguised, and the heart is full of strife.

And genius in a garret safe is found,

With body daily tarnished, yet soul so chaste.

Oh, thou mortal, His gifts, into the ground.

Thou dreamer, worlds are at thy feet—

Thy powers for the asking, everything worth while.

Triumph's throne waiting you, come from thy retreat.

Don't Victory's crown, let not despair beguile.

You say: "The world will mock"—did you yet try

To sway them with your jewels rich and rare?

Thou, who hast power to make them laugh or cry.

Hie, hie thyself, from poverty's dark lair.

Fool! from thine eyes, remove the scales.

Look toward Heaven, not down to the sea.

Pray—for I tell to Him who never fails,

The poet great, omnipotent—Almighty God.

C. K. UNDERWOOD.

For The Children

THE POOR LITTLE PRINCE

Part Seventeen

The three wicked sisters' spell had been broken, for the story Prince Philip had told them had interested all three of them. So was that the little prince left the bottom of the sea with the precious bag of jewels. The sea serpents that had once been men were all turned back into their original shape, too, and it was a merry party that arrived on the seashore from the bottom of the sea.

How grateful the men who had been rescued from the reef of the wicked sisters were. There were more than a hundred of them in all, and they came from many kingdoms. When the little prince had told them his story they all agreed to go with him to the castle of the Grand Duke and demand that his father be freed as well as his mother, but the little prince knew that such a course would be folly.

AVERT OPERATIONS FOR APPENDICITIS—INTERNAL BATHS

Hundreds of surgical operations for appendicitis have been averted by the simple employment of the J. B. L. Cascade. Most troubles arise from the accumulation of waste in the colon, or lower intestine, from which poisons seep.

Cleaning of the intestinal tract with pure warm water, applied with the J. B. L. Cascade, removes the causes of a large number of common ailments—constipation, indigestion, headache, loss of energy and rheumatism.

Mr. James McLaughlin, 81 Evans Street, Winnipeg, writes: "I bought a J.B.L. Cascade for the cure of a bad case of appendicitis. My doctors told me I must have an operation at once. I had spent more than fifty dollars in doctors' bills, but the Cascade completely removed in a few days every trace of soreness and pain. I eat and sleep well now, and have regained my former weight, and am now in perfect health."

The J. B. L. Cascade is being shown at A. D. Ferguson's, Druggist, Macleod, Alberta, who will gladly explain to you its simple operation, tell you why it is so certain in its results and send you a booklet for booklet or Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell, who was a Specialist on Intestinal Complaints for 25 years, for booklet or write Dr. Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College Street, Toronto.

SOULS IN EXILE

We went into a home perched high on a mountain bench above one of the most beautiful lakes in British Columbia. It was a rambling, rustic house with walls not of stone, but of huge red logs. Yet it was easy to see what was the nationality of the owner. He was an Englishman, and this house of cedar was built on the model of some old English country house in which he had spent his boyhood. Around it had been planted English trees, carefully brought from the old land, to keep alive the memories of the place of his birth. We went into a home on one of the level, green plains of the Manitoba prairies.

It was surrounded by a plantation of trees which was the best Manitoba imitation of an English park we had ever seen. The garden, too, was laid out in English style. The owner had lived more than thirty years in Manitoba, and had prospered there as he could not have done in England. He was a loyal Canadian. But he was English still.

It is the same with Scotland's sons and Ireland's exiles wherever you may find them scattered to the ends of the earth. They may have prospered in the land of their adoption. But they cannot forget the lands of their birth or of their forefathers. Ties of tradition and history, memories of a soil consecrated by the blood of heroes, and the pride of the past, bind them to the lands they once called home. These spiritual bonds, light as air yet strong as steel, are more potent factors in shaping our destinies than the material property we so ardently pursue.

The Jews in their exile found that they had grown rich in the markets of Babylon. They had taken these heaven-born gifts which were bequeathed to them by the prophets of mankind, and had put them to commercial use. They became rich bankers and mercantile princes of Babylon. They were rich and powerful and had everything which money could buy. But they were not satisfied. Their souls were in exile. There we sat down, yes, we wept. When we remember Zion.

Jerusalem was but a mountain village as compared with that vast and wealthy metropolis of Babylon. Judah was a tiny, remote, and unsuited hill, tumbled cliffs and gorges, when set over against the fertile plains of the Euphrates and the Tigris, the richest lands of the world, a very garden of Eden. Yet this Master George Johnson as Dr. Macleod, barren though it might be, far surpassed by the presence of God and His holy service.

"If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth. If I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."

If men would only learn this fact in early life, it would save them from many a disappointment, many a barren and unsatisfied old age. "Macleod doth not live by bread alone." An immortal soul cannot find enduring satisfaction in the material. It may be deceived by it for a time into insensibility. But sooner or later it will wake up and find that it is soul hungry. It is the eternal truth expressed by Jesus when He said of the sower of seeds of death.

"Everyone that drinketh of this water shall thirst again; but whosoever shall drink of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall become in him a well of water springing up unto eternal life."

Why go ye for lustre, seeking gold and silver and precious stones, thinking that if you get riches you will be at home there and your soul will be satisfied thereby? There is a treasure to be found at home without which no prosperity will satisfy it. Wealth make a home; without which your soul will be perpetually in exile. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His Righteousness."

Children's Masquerade Ball

Without doubt the prettiest spectacle witnessed in Macleod was the Children's Masquerade Ball on Monday evening last, the occasion being the Christmas Eve party of the Children's Club. There were but few children, little children, fat children, thin children, but all children, and all children were dressed in gorgeous array, the whole forming a veritable rainbow of colors. The judges in awarding prizes were Mr. Dr. Macleod, Mr. Charles E. Insley, William Brown, Nigel H. Bratler and Elmer. P. McEwan's long experience both as actor in important stage and screen productions, and director of a special film perfectly to portray his exacting role in "Gold Steel." Critics everywhere have commended him.

Miss Clifford came first into prominence several years ago when she created a furore on Broadway by playing a child's part in the memorable extravaganza "Top O' the World." Both for her dancing and her delicate beauty she won the commendation of both critics and public. She was the star of the production during its long and successful run. She also created the name part in Henry Savanna's production of "Little Boy Blue," to which her slight figure and charming personality readily adapted her. Then followed a credit in London and a return to her native land to play in "Business Before Pleasure" and "The Heart of a Child" in which she created the leading role. It was natural that the picture producers should select such a promising young woman and shortly after Miss Clifford made her screen debut in a starring role with Douglas Fairbanks in "When the Clouds Roll By" and several other productions of like importance.

OUR MESSAGE TO YOU
is that you need not worry over the high price of shoes. Just hunt through closet or wardrobe and bring out the old shoes you find there. Send them to us, and with our modern machines we'll restore them to active service, thus avoiding the necessity of buying new footwear. Worth a trial, anyway, isn't it?

Mr. Cootie: To The Macleod Electors

Cayley, Alberta,
Nov. 23, 1921.
To the Electors of Macleod Federal Constituency:

At the convention of the U.F.A.
Political League of the Federal Constituency of Macleod, held at Macleod on September 28th, I was selected as their candidate in the forthcoming election.

The principles for which the Organized Farmer Stand have clearly expressed. Their policy and program, I believe to be in the best interests of the Great Majority of the people of this country.

The motto of our league is "Equal Right for All," and I promise if elected, to endeavor to the best of my ability, to represent all the people residing in this constituency.

It was my desire to meet, if possible, every elector in the constituency and discuss with them the issues of this election. Practically ever since the day of the convention I have devoted my time to holding meetings throughout the constituency.

Owing to the large amount of territory included in this constituency and the condition of the weather, I have found it impossible to visit every part of the district, and will be unable to meet, personally, all the electors. I therefore take this method of addressing you, the electors of Macleod and district, and soliciting your support at the polls on December 6th.

Yours faithfully,
G. G. COOTIE.

The Rhyming Optimist

(By Aline Michaels.)
NOBODY HOME

Samantha called on ten good friends, but every body cried, "They've gone away to spend week-ends about the country-side." She stepped to see her dearest chum; the parlor maid said "Out." The would-be visitor felt glum, but still her heart was stout.
She toddled out to Prospect Place to call on Mrs. Brown; the cook appeared with moaning face and blushed
"She's out of town." Samantha travelled with a sigh here, there and roundabout, but met with only one reply at every home: "She's out." She looked at many a handsome hound, as he shuffled up and still. And as she looked she felt a stir of wonder and of doubt, until the thought occured to her, "Good gracious! I am out." She straightway hustled to her cot, a pretty luncheon, the while she thought, "As like as not, I've missed a friend or so, but I avow that from this day I'll spend some time right here; I will not shop and call and play till darkness hovers near. I will not leave my cosy shack the while I reckless roam, and careless maids announce, 'Alack! there's nobody at home!' For though it is a slangy phrase, it aptly suits the case; there's nobody at home these days when folk are on the chase. When maids and matrons and about from dawn till twilight's gloom, it leaves no room for any doubt there's nobody at home!"

CARD OF THANKS

To Mr. McNeil and the Chief of Police for kind and judgment and prompt attention to an urgent request for assistance in a needy case.

Questions To Be Considered Carefully

As the date for polling draws nearer, the electors should consider most carefully how they are going to mark their ballots on Dec. 6th. This is no time for apathy or indifference for it is scarcely too much to say that the issues at stake are as great as they were throughout the war. The people are confronted with immense national and private debts; there are thousands who are unemployed; business defaults are to be met every year; and business generally is stagnated. Let no one treat these questions in a careless way, for it behooves everyone to consider well what his outcome is to be.

In the face of these things, it is surprising to see the government of the day carrying on a campaign of slander, such as they have conducted against Mr. Crotter and the United Grain Growers as has been done, and an example of which was heard at their public meeting in Macleod a few evenings ago. We have read of a certain engineer who fiddled while Rome burned, and in the face of the questions at stake, we think that such slanders may well be classed with those of the emperor. Surely the people want to hear something constructive.

For example, what is to be done with the enormous surplus of agricultural products in Canada? Is it all very well to argue that the markets of the U.S. are closed against us, and also that the Great Britain is in a certain extent, and that our government is powerless to re-open them. The fact is that we are willing to trade with these countries on even terms, the door for negotiations may easily be open, but our government is committed to a policy of exclusion, and therefore they are not likely to open any such negotiations, and if questions of this kind are not to be settled, then of what use to urge people to go on the land, and if our surplus lands are not to be colonized, then what is the solution of our surplus problem?

And now is the unemployment to be relieved? Is it not to be expected that the home market can absorb all the agricultural products of Canada?
Instead of trying to such a question as we have heard, will the government supporters kindly answer some of the following questions.

Questions

If the government candidate cannot answer these questions, let the electors vote for the progressives who undertake to deal with all of these vital questions.

How does the government propose to develop the carrying business that will enable the nation's railways to run without a million a week deficit?
How does the government propose to make the merchant marine pay when it insists on taxing the cargoes they bring into Canada?

Has the government any policy to meet the decadence of rural population and the present plight of agriculture?

Do you oppose the principle "That all corporations engaged in the manufacture of products protected by the tariff be obliged to publish annually comprehensive and accurate statements of their earnings?" Why is it omitted from your platform?

Do you oppose the principle "That every claim for tariff protection by any industry should be heard publicly before a special committee of parliament?" McNeil and King give no such promise—why?

What is your attitude toward the principle of electors financing the campaign of their candidate? Is not favorable what do you propose as the source of campaign funds? On what principle and from what source do your campaign funds come?

Are you in favor of the limitation contained in Premier Meighen's statement that "the soil from which the Wood-Croft movement grew is not so wholly Canadian as the soil from which you and I sprang?"

What is your view on the proposal to augment the nation's revenue by "a direct tax on unimproved land values, including all natural resources?"

CARD OF THANKS

The Committee of the Macleod District Red Cross wish to thank the people of Macleod for their very generous response to the appeal for clothing for the needs of this district.
They also wish to thank the R.C.M.
Police, Messrs. Rimland, Dilatush, W.
Stewart and H. H. Young for their help with wagons and cars in collecting the clothing and the Empress Theatre, and Macleod Times in advertising the appeal.

EMPRESS FRIDAY & SATURDAY

What Is To Be Canada's Destiny?

Shall it be that through the destruction of the Tariff as proposed by both Crotter and King, the development of Canada is to come under the domination of the United States, to be followed by gradual financial domination and as a consequence, political domination?

OR

Is Canada's destiny to be that of a great free nation within the British Empire group of Nations, developing her boundless resources of mine, river, water power, forest, and cultivating her millions upon millions of acres of arable land? Is her development to surpass that of any other nation?

Shall her manufacturing industries develop her minerals and raw materials into implements and goods for the benefit and comfort of her people and for foreign trade?

Shall she become a self-contained nation within the Empire, her great railways interchanging, the products of factory and farm among her own people, and her ships sailing every sea?

Shall she maintain her integrity within the Empire and protect her farms and factories against unfair competition from foreign countries?

IF THIS IS TO BE CANADA'S DESTINY THEN CANADA NEEDS MEIGHEN.

On December 6th, Canada should once again protect her farms, her factories and her workmen against the unsound theory of Free Trade, and should hold fast to her reasonable Protective Tariff, her national unity and her British connection.

On December 6th Canada should declare, with no uncertain voice that she will not tolerate the false trade theories of visionaries and group leaders which tend toward her economic destruction, toward the separation of her people and the weakening of the ties that bind Canada to the British Empire.
On December 6th Canada should demonstrate unmistakably to the outside world her fixed determination to keep Canada for the Canadians.

On December 6th Canada's destiny is at stake.

(Contributed.)
Come boys, be wise, take my advice and do not go astray.
But come right out and vote for Cootie upon election day.

For he is the man that will take the stand and do by all what's fair.
Now ladies fair, please do your share,
And also vote for him.
Who brings a lady out to speak that you're interested in—She comes right out and tells the truth and that's what we want to hear.

Some people don't because they fear
That it may hurt their car.
But one and all give us a call and on election day
Come out and break the party lines and let them fade away. S. G. G.

"STAND TO!"

"Stand to!" Dye hear, "Stand to!"
We're waiting all too long.
Give me a shout in his old dog-out
An pass the word along!

A dorky outlined trench,
A faintly shining dawn,
A red-eyed squad in the Land of Nod Roused to a chilly morn.

The Listening Post comes in;
The first-step man looks roun'
As the dew falls wet on the parapet
As we wait to hear "Stand down!"

Oh! you in feather beds,
Warm wrapped in linen fine,
It's lucky for you that you ain't here,
too,
With us on the raw front line.

"Stand to!" Dye hear, "Stand to!"
Dye mean to keep us long?
Wet or dry, it's the same old cry,
So—pass the word along!
N. H. Gubbins.

MACLEOD METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY SERVICES

At the morning service Mr. Armstrong will speak on "Life Ideas." In the evening he will give the first of a series of addresses on "Community Activities—The Dance." Strangers are cordially welcomed.
